Suspension of Jay Cooke & Co. The failure of Messrs. JAY COOKE & Co., the widely known bankers, with the closing of their New York, Philadelphia and Washington houses and of their Washington bank, the First National, was the event of yesterday. Our news columns furnish very full details touching the causes of the failure and the feeling in New York and other cities. Two or three other houses in New York and one in Philadelphia more or less closely connec ted with the Cooke's in their railway en terprise have also suspended. It was a day great excitement in Wall street, before the announcement of the Cooke failure as well as after; but it does not appear that the latter added much to the alarm or that it is likely to lead to wide-spread disaster The London house, JAY COOKE, McCul. LOUGH & Co. is reported solvent, a very gratifying fact that will do much to temper the consequences of the disaster. In this city the announcement made some thing of a sensation and was the subject of much comment in business and banking here were in any way affected by the fail-

As to syndicate operations the salance is in favor of the government, they having overpaid at the last settle ment. Late this afternoon there was something of a run on the Washington City Bavings Bank. All demands so far have been promptly met.

LATER GENERAL REVIEW. NEW YORK, Sept. 18 .- Another day of excitement has passed over Wall street. Early this morning predictions were made that this would be a hard day and one that would see the downfall o than one financial house. The Chicago fire, it was thought, would occasion i Stock fluctuated wonderfully fo first two or three hours. Western Union fell off 10 per cent without an upward struggle, but about noon recovered to its opening figure.

At noon it was whispered that the house of Jay Cooke & Co. had suspended. At However it had great effect, men and boys ran races from office, to office; the telegraph was in operation and the excitement grew intense. Shortly a that the suspension had occurred, the reason being the advances made to their Philadelphia house, which rendered then unable to meet the demands made upon firm had suspended, rumors of other prominent houses sprang into existence, that Jay Cooke has lost large sums in but all reports about the suspensions of recent gold investments; and another rufirms, except Jay Cooke & Co.. Richard mor is that the tightness in the money Schell and the small sirm of Suydam & Co., upon investigation prove to be with out foundation. When this fact was made known on the street, confiden was again restored, and at the close is not thought that any other firm ominence will succumb. Men, regarded as among the safest and most Judi clous on the street, give it as their opinion that the great danger is past Robinson & Co. expect to resume in a few days. Mr. Schell was not prepared make any statement in regard to his liabilities. especially by the decline in Vanderbilt stocks, in which he was a large dealer. The liabilities of Jay Cooke & Co. cannot be ascertained. It will take some time to make a statement of the affairs of the house. Their creditors are mostly banks and bankers, there being but a few individual depositors in the list. The suspension will greatly interfere with the operation of the syndicate, and probably suspend the negotiation of 5 per cents. The bonds of the Northern Pacific have been of slow sale recently, and the failure of Kenyon, Cox & Co., and of the New York and Os wego Midland Road operated disastrously against further negotiation of bonds. The Express says: "The war upon railroads has produced a part of this panic creating as it has a want of confi-dence among large capitalists and dence among large continuing the first strength of the London firm of Jay small investors, and injured both credit terday passed to the London firm of Jay and progress of the railroad enterprises. WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—The Chronicle of to-morrow, alluding to the closing of Jay Cooke & Co., says it has the best authority for saying that the father is as complete a surprise to the leading members of the firm as to the public. Governor Cooke returned from Philadelphia Wednesday, and, although he knew the firm had been laboring under the pressure of a severe money stringency in their operations, still he was fully satisfied that they would avoid the apparent danger and meet their obligations, and be able to secure the renewal of their paper; and the first information he had to the contrary was a dispatch amounting that their first information his had to the contrary was a dispatch amounting that their New York house and their Philadelphia house had closed, which of course compelled action. Here the Chronicle also remarks that the firm is composed of gentlemen of large personal wealth, and they give the most positive assurance that the individual depositors chall be projected and that they will surance that the individual depositors shall be protected, and that they will be able in a short time to resume business. We are authorized to say that the firm have been eggaged in no general speculation in stocks and have met with no financial disaster further than is here stated. It was said about the Treasury Department to-day that there was yesterday passed to the London firm of Jay Cooke & Co. a warrant for $1,000,000 to nay the naval efficiers abroad, but that

New York, Sept. 18.—A reporter of the Tribune called to-night on Samuel Wilkinson, Secretary of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, who said there was no question that the failure of Jay Cooke & Co. and the suspicion thrown on all railroad bonds, no matter how good and the suspicion thrown on all railroad bonds, no matter how good and the suspicion thrown on all railroad bonds, no matter how good and the suspicion thrown on all railroad bonds, no matter how good and the suspicion thrown on the suspicio all railroad bonds, no matter now good their securities might be, on account of the failure of the Canadian Southern and the New York & Oswego Midland Rail-roads, would prevent the sale of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company's bonds and all other railroad bonds for the bonds and all other rainvoat bonds for the present, and probably for a considerable time to come. As is usual with financial agents, Jay Cooke & Co. had made large advances to the company, but he did not think this had impaired their credit or crippled them. Their failure was due to a sudden rou in consequence of the money market.

The Tribune says late this evening the following reasons were given by Mr. Fahnstock, one of the firm of Jay.

Fahnstock, one of the firm of Jay.

THE REPUBLICAN SUED FOR LIBER.

THE REPUBLICAN SUED F Fahnstock, one of the failure of the house: For several weeks the uneasy feeling which prevalled in connection with the railroad schemes caused a heavy drain upon the deposits, both of their Philadelphia and New York houses. The deposits in both cities suffered a continual diminution until at the beginning of the present month, when their deposits were lower than at any time during last fall and this spring. The drain upon the deposits already so heavy, was still further increased by the recent suspension and the demands for money was increased, and it is felt stil more severely in Philadelphia. The Philadelphia house was compelled to call upon the New York house for aid, and a large amount of assistance was rendered. The Philadelphia house was under large advances and pressure, and of course there will be much alarm among the country depositors; but after all this collapse is not about to do any serious evil.

The crowning, rumor of the day was the time unfortunately too frue; Jay Cooke & Co., Government fiscal agents, who had stood so high in financial circles throughout the world, were impaired by reason of their connection with the Northern Pacific railroad, and would probably be obliged to suspend. This rumor, which was in the air early in the morning spread like wild fire. But although dealers were disposed to believe almost anything, it was still rather difficult to convince them that the foremest American banking house in this country was not able to meet its obligations. Of course measures were immediately taken to verify the statement, and at moon it was officially announced that Jay Cooke & Co., had suspended. This news was immediately flashed over the wires of stocks and gold indicators, around which groups had been waiting all the morning, and the dispatch read to all. The effect was electric and Jay Cooke & Co's offices were soon crowded with an anxious throng.
